Construction complete on The Center at McKinleyville

Construction on The Center at McKinleyville is complete and final preparations are being made. The Center is a project of McKinleyville Family Resource Center (FRC), Open Door Community Health Centers, Humboldt State University Department of Social Work, North Coast Regional Department of Child Support Services, Trinidad Rancheria Tribal Social Services and the Humboldt County Department of Health & Human Services.

McKinleyville FRC Executive Director Hillarie Beyer said being in close proximity to community partners will aid in assisting mutual clients. "Having our agencies in the same building will provide opportunities for staff to work across agencies to improve community members' experiences of all of our services."

She said the new location also has two conference rooms, a demonstration kitchen and a playground and playrooms which will benefit the whole community. "In addition to improved access to services used by many members of our community, The Center will be a gathering place for people to participate in new programming."
