Dry weather test period extended for second time

The Humboldt County Department of Health & Human Services Division of Environmental Health (DEH) has for the second time this month extended the dry weather test period for evaluation of water quantity supplies for proposed subdivisions and residential construction through Monday, Oct. 31.

All parties anticipating subdividing land, developing an accessory dwelling unit or developing parcels located within the coastal zone, who intend to utilize on-site water supplies to serve individual or up to four connections, should contact a qualified consultant to arrange for testing. The applicant's agent must certify that at least 720 gallons of water per day for each residence can be produced.

Additional information regarding water quantity testing and water production test procedures can be obtained by calling DEH at 707-445-6215 or 800-963-9241. Water production standards and test procedures are also available at DEH's webpage at:
