I am in 100% agreement with Rick Pelren regarding this project. Naturally the perpetrators of this project are going to choose the most profitable to themselves option. It makes no difference to them once they have completed the project whether the Eel River is ruined, thousands of trees wasted in their wake and an eyesore everyone who lives within miles will have to look at for the rest of their lives. WHY, with a far less destructice option would ANYONE choose to put a power project in the heart if the redwoods? So we can have a repeat of the last power facility-generated devastating fires consume one of the last glories of California? Along with who knows how many lives? Just think, Camp Fire times how much? Ye gods, the only place for such a project is where it poses the least threat to people, forests, animals and the incomparable beauty of Humboldt County.
